Start clip at 56:50. It will give you chills.

Thank you to Civilian Intelligence Network for digging up the film. In what can only be described as predictive programming, or a trial run, Theresa Tam “Canada’s top Doctor” takes part in a 2010 film about a fictional epidemic in Canada. Doesn’t get much more premeditated than shooting a film a decade in advance.

In the film (56:50 to 57:50) Tam talks approvingly (seeming almost giddy) about being able to enforce mandatory quarantines, using tracking bracelets, and only “worry later” about questions of an overreach. It’s difficult to make the clip look worse than it actually is. Seems that life is now imitating art.

And on a more petty note: there is something not quite human about those eyes.

1. Lobbying Needs To Be Addressed

Several articles in this series cover the lobbying by Bill Gates and other pharmaceutical companies in general. This is rampant at the Provincial and Federal levels, and goes on outside of Canada as well.

The reason for this focus is to give context. One can’t understand why politicians are pushing the vaccine agenda without realizing how much influence peddling goes on behind the scenes. Big pharma, to a large degree, is pulling the strings of our public officials. Hence the obsession with getting everyone vaccinated.

It must also be addressed that Bill Gates (among others), is promoting a depopulation agenda. While developing and pushing vaccines under the guise of promoting global health, Gates has spoken many times about how the world has too many people in it. Take that into consideration before getting the needle.

Beyond big pharma, there are many players using the opportunity as a chance to obtain power, or to wield more power. Many selfish actors are willing to perpetuate the lie for these reasons.

This fictional film (or predictive programming) was done a decade ago and Public Safety Canada makes them available for the public to watch. Interesting side note: this was on 2010, and wasn’t Stephen Harper the Prime Minister at the time?

Chief Public Health Officer of Canada

- Biography
- Role and mandate
- Vision and areas of focus

Follow @CPHO_Canada

Dr. Theresa Tam was named Canada's Chief Public Health Officer (CPHO) on June 26, 2017. She is a physician with expertise in immunization, infectious disease, emergency preparedness and global health security.

As the federal government's lead health professional, Dr. Tam provides advice to the Minister of Health, supports and provides advice to the President of the Public Health Agency of Canada, and

They even used the same picture for both profiles.

> Dr. Tam has served as an international expert on a number of World Health Organization committees and has participated in multiple international missions related to SARS, pandemic influenza and polio eradication.

This may be stretching it, but Tam's profile as Chief Public Health Officer of Canada is misleading. It refers to her roles in a past tense, suggesting she no longer has any involvement in the World Health Organization. But that is simply not true. AS for the assigned role by the Federal Government:

The Chief Public Health Officer (CPHO) is the federal government's lead public health professional. The CPHO is responsible for:

- Providing advice to the Minister of Health and President of the Public Health Agency of Canada on health issues;
- Working with other governments, jurisdictions, agencies, organizations, and countries on health matters;
- Providing an annual report to the Minister on the state of public health in Canada for tabling in Parliament; and
- Speaking to Canadians, health professionals, stakeholders, and the public about issues affecting the population's health.

The CPHO is also accountable for or has delegated responsibilities for public health-related provisions of the Public Health Agency of Canada Act, the Quarantine Act, the Human Pathogens and Toxins Act and the Department of Health Act.

In an Emergency

In a public health emergency, such as an outbreak or natural disaster, the Chief Public Health Officer is responsible for:

- Briefing and advising Canada's Minister of Health, the President of the Public Health Agency and others as appropriate;
- Working with counterparts in other departments, jurisdictions, and countries, as well as with experts and elected officials, to communicate with Canadians about how to protect themselves and their families;
- Personally delivering public health information to Canadians via media appearances, public statements, updates to the Public Health Agency web site, and columns and public advertisements in daily and community newspapers;
- Providing direction to Public Health Agency staff, including medical professionals, scientists, and epidemiologists, as they plan and respond to the emergency;

- Leading daily national teleconferences as appropriate with federal government scientists and experts to share information and plan outbreak responses; and
- Coordinating with jurisdictions through regular teleconferences with Canada's provincial and territorial Chief Medical Officers of Health and others.

This all is fine and good, except holding a position with the World Health Organization at the same time is not in the public interest. In times where WHO offers poor advice, Tam would have to choose between rejecting that advice, or adopting it and running interference.

Although the details are enough to be an article by themselves, Tam has shown repeatedly that this conflict-of-interest is to the detriment of Canadians.

5. The Coronavirus Rabbit-Hole

In a sense this is a prequel to the CV series coming out, though it's a newer piece. Actually, Part 11 of the series (Ontario lobbying) is already up.

There isn't just one person, one organization, or one fact to know. This planned-emic is a well coordinated and thought out attack on our livelihood. Know who is behind it, know who is being lobbied. There is so much that politicians and the media are not saying.

In fact, several pieces focus exclusively on the lobbying. If government officials are promoting mass vaccination, we should be asking why. Since they won't answer truthfully, then check out who they have been talking to.

Much more still needs to be done.

Has man kind (or at least the rich and powerful) decided they are God? Is it really such a great thing to have wealth ? We know that one can lose it in an instant. Who does man kind think they are that they can come up with plans to depopulate, kill, mislead, steal, destroy and control us. Canada used to be a Godly country and you can see when we were we were in a much better state. I used to be proud to say I'm Canadian but not so much any more. Our politicians and all those who make decisions for the people must have no morals or standards or value for life. It seems it's all about wealth and power. We need to take all these leaders to court and judge them and find them and imprisonments them for all their wrong doings. It's time we found some excellent strong leaders who have a brain and a heart and can not be tempted or used as a puppet by higher powers. And our media should also be taken to task for promoting falsities and nonsense. To control people with fear may work on some but not all. It's a shame that there are not enough leaders with backbone to rise above the bullying. Canadians have rights and it's time we stand and take them.
